

Special Provisions for the Use of Festo Security Advisories

The following special provisions for the use of Festo Security Advisories (the "Special Provisions") apply in addition to and partially amend the Festo Terms of Use:

Permission for Use

Festo grants third parties the right to use, redistribute, and modify the Festo Security Advisories published by Festo' PSIRT services on "Festo Security Advisory | Festo DE", in accordance with these Special Provisions. This includes permission for commercial use.

Modification and Redistribution

Third parties are permitted to modify the content of the Festo Security Advisories to a limited extent and to distribute the modified content. The following conditions must be met:

- All changes must be technically correct.
- Changes may only relate to formatting, contextualization, or adaptation to specific needs, without altering the original content or recommendations from Festo.
- Modified content must be clearly labeled as such, including:
 - The date of modification.
 - The name or identification of the person or organization that made the changes.
 - Modified content must not give the impression that it originates from Festo.

Purpose of Use

The right to use, redistribute, and modify the Festo Security Advisories is limited to the purpose of informing the third parties' own organization, its affiliates, or its customers about specific Festo Security Advisories.

Mandatory Link to Original

Regardless of any modifications made, all redistributed versions of the Security Advisories must include a link to the original text on the Festo website, as a reference to the authoritative and most up-to-date source of the information.

Revocation Clause

Festo reserves the right to revoke the permission granted under these Special Provisions at any time in case of violations of these Special Provisions or any other provisions of the Festo Terms of Use.

Intellectual Property and Other Terms

All other provisions of the Festo Terms of Use, including those related to Intellectual Property and to Export Control Regulations, shall remain in effect and applicable.
